SENATE GIVES APPROVAL TO DROUTH LOAN

Twenty Million Compromise Plan on Relief Legislation Accepted.

CARRIED BY 67-15 VOTE

Action Comes After Six Days of Debate; Acceptance in House Expected.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—The senate today accepted the $20,000,000 drouth loan compromise on relief legislation. The vote for approval of the compromise was 67 to 15.

Eight Republicans, six Democarts and the Farmer-Labor senator voted against the cmopromise. Thirty-one Democrats and 36 Republicans voted for it.

Supported by both Democratic and Republican leaders, the substitute for the $25 000 000 Red Cross relief fund was given approval after six days of debate in which Republican independents and some Democarts severely condemned it.

It must now be approved by the house, where administration leaders already had promised it support. President Hoover's approval is conceded.

The compromise appropriates $20,000 000 as a loan fund for "agricultural habilitation." Secretary Hyde, who will administer the fund, has informed the senate there could be no prohibition against the use of the money by the farmers for the purchase of food and clothing.

Immediately before the vote was taken the senate heard it severely assailed from both sides of the aisle, with Senator Barkley, Democrat of Kentucky, leading the attack.

Fund Increased

It adds to the $45,000,000 already appropriated for loans for purchase of seed, livestock, feed and fertilizer. The compromise was embodied in the appropriation bill carrying funds for next year's operations of the interior department. The entire bill was formally approved by the vote. This completes senate action on the interior bill, the first of 11 supply measures to get through the senate.

The interor bill carries a total of almost $90,000,000 of which more than $20,000,000 would be available immediately for public improvements in government projects in the west.

Agreement to vote was reached last night late, after the end of a filibuster of eight hours duration, conducted by Senator Thomas, Democrat of Oklahoma, against the interior bill which carries the compromise appropriation. The senator was exhausted.

When it was over a feeling of relief spread over the membership, which for a time entertained fears of a determined movement to force an extra session by blocking the necessary appropriations. Thomas said this was not his object. He waged his attack against the conference report which struck out some provisions relating to Indians which the senate had inserted.

Thomas had pending a motion to recommit the conference report, but its defeat was expected. If the report were then upheld approval of the compromise would be up to the house, whose leaders are for it.

100-YEAR-OLD GRAD OF YALE SUCCUMBS

Edward P. Bradstreet, Nestor of Ohio Bar, Dies in Cincinnati Home.

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 14—Edward P. Bradstreet, oldest graduate of Yale and nestor of the Ohio bar, died at his home here early today. He was 100 years old.

The aged barrister, who until the last year or two had maintained his law office and took a prominent part in civic affairs, had failed gradually for some time. Recently he was critically ill, but he managed to rally.

Bradstreet was a member of the famous class of 111 which finished Yale in 1853. He celebrated his one hundredth birthday last June 5, when he was honored at a banquet by the Yale club.

The centenarian who refused to grow old manitained his interest in Cincinnati affairs almost to the last. Gymnastics, he said, enabled him to achieve his long life.

SEEK TRAIL OF BLOND WOMAN

Search for "Mary of Akron" Now Leading in Potter Murder Inquiry.

SOUGHT IN TWO STATES

Believe Sweetheart of Hymie Martin Can Help Solve Mystery.

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 14—A blond woman known as "Mary of Akron" who has figured prominently in the investigation of the slaying of former Councilman William E. Potter, was hunted in Ohio and Pennsylvania today in the belief she might shed some light on the mystery of how and why Potter was shot down.

The woman is believed to be a sweetheart of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, identified as the man who rented the apartment in which Potter was killed Feb. 3. Martin, self-admitted whisky runner, is under arrest at Pittsburgh and officers sought his extradition on a first degree murder warrant.

The blond also is believed to have been the woman neighbors said they saw with Martin in the apartment building a day or two before the killing.

The day after Potter was killed Martin and a blond woman believed to be "Mary" were seen at Kent, O., according to John Echelberry, a merchant policeman.

The next report of Martin's traveling came from Mansfield, where Mrs. Paul Watson, 38, waitress in a restaurant, said she saw him and another man on Feb. 10. It was believed that the men might have taken the blond there to "hide out."

Prosecutor Ray T. Miller said that the identification of Martin as the man who rented the murder suite still leaves the principal problems of finding out why Potter's death was wanted.

Extradition papers for the release of Martin to Ohio authorities were presented to Governor Pinchot at Harrisburg, Pa., today by William Dempsey.

QUIZ EXAMINER

Asked Regarding Handling of Checks by Banker Daugherty.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, D. H., Feb. 14—Further details of the alleged manipulations of Mal S. Daugherty, charged with abstraction of funds of the Ohio State bank, were sought by the state today from Cecil L. Hall of Cincinnati, who examined the bank's books.

Hall finished his testimony, begun yesterday, in which he asserted that Daugherty, former president of the bank, abstracted $5,350—the amount of two checks which bore the indorsement of John Perrill, Fayette county banker. Hall said deposit slips showed the checks were deposited to Daugherty's account, but that there was nothing to indicate what happened to the money.

Hall was placed on the stand when Judge Charles S. Bell halted a clash between attorneys by ruling that the prosecution must disregard the 15 other indictments against Daugherty until an effort was made to show intent to defraud.

GEN. C. R. EDWARDS IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Long and Distinguished Military Career Ends in Boston Hospital.

By The Associated Press.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 14—Major General Clarence R. Edwards, 71, wartime commander of the 26th (Yankee) division, died at 7 06 a m today at the Phillips House, where he has been a patient since Jan. 15.

The general had been in a state of coma through the night. An intestinal operation, the second since he became a patient at the hospital, was performed yesterday. He failed to rally from the shock.

Two blood transfusions built up his fast-ebbing strength enough to warrant the operation, which, it was hoped, might cure the general.

Many Respond to Appeal

When a call went out from the hospital a few days ago appealing for volunteers for a blood transfusion, former doughboys of the 26th all but fought to get there first. Old and young, rich and poor, policemen and firemen, a prominent lawyer and a widely known judge all reported to the hospital. They were all 'Edwards' boys," and eager to "go through" for the old commander as in the days of the war.

At 3 30 this morning he began to sink rapidly. A blood transfusion, performed immediately after the operation failed to aid the general. His condition was regarded so serious that Mrs. Charles A. Otis, of Cleveland, his sister, was brought to his bedside.

Burial in Arlington

Funeral arrangements provided for burial in Arlington National cemetery, Washington. The body will be taken to the state house Sunday, where it will lie in state until evening when it will be placed on board a train for Washington. The services in Washington will take place at 11 a m Monday.

After compiling a notable record as an administrative and line officer in the United States army for 35 years, General Edwards topped it off with brilliant service as a division commander in the World war.

He organized and trained the 26th division, made up of New England National Guard troops, and then proudly went to France at the head of the division. From February to October, 1918, he led his

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire

SEES TAX BOOST FOR VETS' LOAN

Either Levy Increase or Bond Issue Probable, Hawley Says.

PLAN MEETS OPPOSITION

Administration Firmly Against Proposal for 50 Per Cent Borrowing.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—The opinion that the federal government would have to raise through increased taxation or a bond issue funds to allow the increased World war veterans' loans under the pending proposal was expressed today by Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee.

The Oregon member, however, said it would be practically impossible to increase the taxes at this session, but indicated that unless the revenues from existing taxes did not provide sufficient funds to meet the expenditures, along with the loan demands, the taxes might be increased next session.

Administration Against It

Outright opposition of the administration to the proposal for increasing the loan value of veterans' compensation certificates to 50 per cent today faced house membership which had been set upon enacting it into law.

Secretary Mellon, basing objection almost exclusively on the difficult situation of the treasury—increased appropriations, dwindling revenues and impending large refunding operations—communicated the administration view to Chairman Hawley last night.

Secretary Mellon's statement said he could not "too urgently recommend that this measure would have reconsideration in order that it should be placed upon a basis which will not damage our whole financial system."

He calculated it would involve an appropriation of approximately a billion unless congress was prepared to incur an obligation without providing means to meet it.

Eacharach, asserting the veterans borrowed only $80,000,000 last year despite the "extreme hard times" estimated they would not withdraw more than $250,000,000 under his plan.

Earl Carroll Revue Show Is Halted by Police Raid

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" revue, was halted by police last night in a spectacular raid at the Grand opera house in which 28 chorus girls, two principals in the cast and the manager of the play were arrested, on charges of participation in "an indecent theatrical performance." The house was packed at the time.

Armed with warrants issued by Judge Justin F. McCarthy on request of John Alcock, acting commissioner of police, nine uniformed officers marched in through the main entrance, strode down both aisles, mounted the stage and ordered the curtain down. One of the raiding policemen complained a chorus girl kicked him as he passed through the wings.

CABINET FALL ROCKS SPANISH KING'S THRONE

Grave Situation Confronts Ruler as Berenguer and Aids Resign.

ELECTION PLANS DROPPED

Crisis Seen as Most Dangerous in Long Regime of King.

By The Associated Press.

MADRID Feb 14 The government of Premier General Damaso Berenguer, successor to the Primo de Rivera dictatorship, fell today, bringing to a head a crisis which appeared to be the most dangerous of any faced by King Alfonso in the course of his long reign.

The king accepting the resignation of General Berenguer and his cabinet, cancelled parliamentary elections which were scheduled for March 1 and 15 and immediately began conferences with a view to forming a new cabinet.

Crisis Comes Suddenly

While the cabinet had been under fire for several weeks indeed from its very inception in January 1930 the situation which brought its fall developed only late last night when the Count of Romanones and other important liberal monarchist leaders withdrew their support of the cabinet's election program.

De Romanones a former premier, and the Marquis de Alhucemas, issued a statement in which they said that they would participate in the forthcoming elections because they believed that abstention would set a bad precedent, but that upon convening of the Cortes, or parliament, they would ask its dissolution and convocation of a convention to write a new Spanish constitution.

The election program which King Alfonso had put into decree form Feb. 7, bringing within the immediate future a return to parliamentary rule after seven years of dictatorship and virtual dictatorship, had already been under fire from extremist elements who had vowed not to participate in the balloting.

See Throne Threatened

In view of growing republican agitation the depressed state of the Spanish currency and increasing internal dissatisfaction the crisis was viewed here as most grave and one in which the throne itself is threatened.

Nobody attempts to deny the gravity of this situation which many regard as the most formidable challenge to the political policies which the king has ever faced.

It was not certain whether a new cabinet could be put together today or would require several days. Meanwhile the Berenguer cabinet will continue.

GAS PRICES DOWN CENT HERE TODAY

Sixth Change Since Dec. 31 Recorded as Major Companies Lower Cost.

Gasoline prices in Marion changed again today, a reduction of one cent a gallon having been announced by the major companies in order to meet the state-wide two-cent reduction announced today.

The new scale here, as well as over the entire state, is 15 cents a gallon for regular gasoline and 18 and 19 cents for the higher grades.

The change here marks the sixth time the prices have fluctuated since Dec. 31. Until last week the price for a three-weeks period was 14 cents a gallon, the lowest here in three years, but last week the price was boosted to 16 cents, one cent under the state scale.

Price cutting and secret rebating among major companies were given as the reasons for the state-wide cut. Cuts also were reported in Chicago and Indianapolis, Ind., today.

FATAL CRASH HALTS WEDDING

Death of Bridegroom Disrupts Valentine Day Marriage in Richmond, Ind.

HIT BY INTERURBAN

Bride Grief-Stricken at News of Tragedy; Victim's Companions Hurt.

By United Press.

RICHMOND, Ind., Feb 14 A Valentine's day wedding which was to have been a leading social event here was forestalled by tragedy early today when the bridegroom, George Maurice Peffer, Jr., of Piqua, Ohio, was killed in a collision between his car and an interurban train.

Peffer a bond salesman of Dayton, O., died while enroute to a Richmond hospital. The accident occurred while Peffer and two companions, formerly fraternity brothers at Miami university, were riding to Richmond for the wedding. The other two youths John Reuben of Miami, O. and Thaddeus Braffett of Richmond, were slightly injured.

Bride Grief-Stricken

Miss Dorothy Augustine, of Richmond, to whom Peffer was to have been married today, was grief-stricken at the home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Howard Augustine. Her father is pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Augustine's father was to have performed the wedding ceremony. Many guests had been invited to attend the wedding and numerous gifts for the couple had been received at the home of the young woman. An expensive limousine had been ordered as a wedding gift by Peffer's father.

Occurred Near Richmond

The collision in which Peffer was fatally injured occurred on the National road two miles east of Richmond. Braffett was driving the machine and was believed to have been confused by the lights on the interurban car.

George M. Peffer, president of the Piqua National Bank & Trust company, father of the young man, was notified of his death early today and left for Richmond.

Advertising Will Make Fortunes: Curtis

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 29.—Advertising will make fortunes, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, president of the Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia, told the committee of 100 social organizations here.

He criticised advertisers who curtail their expenditures in lean times, and said his company will spend $2,000,000 for 1931 advertising.

He Might Have Added:

Read and Ponder The Statement Of One Of The World's Foremost Publishers

Mr. Merchant:—
What About YOUR ADVERTISING IN 1931?
Will You Wait Until "Times" Are Better or Will Your Business Be Pushed — — FULL SPEED AHEAD?

PUT THE MARION STAR On Your SALES FORCE

The Star does not have to knock at the door; it has been a familiar figure for years and enters the home as a welcome guest. Neither does it have to proceed slowly from door to door; it enters fifteen thousand homes in this vicinity at practically the same time and conveys its message to every member of the family. It doesn't antagonize your prospects or talk a sale to death. Its salary is known to you in advance; it doesn't charge you a commission or turn in an expense account. It isn't loafing when it should be attending to business. You can count on its getting there every day, accidents alone excepted. Best of all, you can hire it when you want it, and just as long as you want it, without arguments or apologies.

Do not be too easily convinced that times are "bad." Do not be too sure that merchandise and services cannot be sold. Lean times are largely a case of the tail wagging the dog. It is true that some people are unemployed but reports of this kind are usually exaggerated. For every unemployed person there are many others whose incomes are unimpaired and whose needs and desires remain at full tide.

In addition, every dollar's worth of business transacted gives employment to many people and if you can keep filling the needs of your patrons, your stocks must be replenished by manufacturers, transportation, etc.

In mutual consolation "conferences" you doubtless have heard the expression, "The Blank Co. is spending a large amount of money for advertising, I don't see how they can afford it."

Don't be misled! The Blank Co. is getting returns for their advertising appropriation in direct proportion to its expenditures. You, too, may do the same. Make known to Star readers what merchandise or services you have and you are assured a widely diversified market which is completely covered and will be found surprisingly responsive.

TROPICAL ISLE SCENE OF PICTURES AT MARION

The old story of a half-caste marrying a white man makes up the plot of "Aloha," a Tiffany production which stars Raquel Torres and Ben Lyon and which opened last night at the Marion. It is to be presented again today.

Beginning on a tropical island, the story takes the two principals back to the United States where Lyon's father disowns him. They leave his home and live in semi-poverty until the father dies, after which the son takes over the father's business.

Sensing that his wife is unhappy here Lyon takes her and their small son back to the island. A misunderstanding between them occurs on the boat and when the vessel docks at the island Lyon finds his wife missing. Later he discovers she has gone to hurl herself into the crater of a flaming volcano.

Robert Edeson, Alan Hale, Thelma Todd, T. Roy Barnes and Dickie Moore have other leading roles.

The last chapter of "The Phantom of the West," starring Tom Tyler, is another feature on the bill, other items of which are a Pathe News, a Mickey McGuire comedy and a talkartoon

ASHLAND FIVE CONTINUES UNDEFEATED

PRESIDENTS BEATEN FIFTH TIME OF YEAR ON STAR GYM 18-14

Harding Falters After Setting Pace in First Quarter of Game.

BY KARL R. McELROY

EVEN a Friday the thirteenth can not stop the march of the Ashland Hilltoppers toward a North Central Ohio league championship. With black cats and what have you floating through the atmosphere last night the league leaders won their seventh straight game from Harding's basketeers 18 to 14 in The Star auditorium.

The Presidents had their usual luck. After holding the lead in the first quarter they went behind as the half ended. Ashland coasted to a victory in the last half by stalling.

Ling Tops Scorers

Ling, Harding's pivote man, was the high scorer of the fray. He counted four field goals for a total of eight points. Campbell and Bear, guard and forward, each scored three field goals for Ashland.

Harding's lead lasted until late in the second quarter. Ashland drew first blood in the game when McMillen looped a free throw on Merkel's foul. Harding missed a pair of shots from the charity line before Ling located the bucket for his first counter. He scored another and Smith a free throw to close the initial quarter with the Red and Black out in front 5 to 1.

Ashland grew stronger as the game grew older and opened the second period with a fielder by Campbell. Thomas looped a free throw and Ashland went one point out in front when Bear slipped past his guard for a two pointer. Smith tied up the count at six all with a free throw. Bear's two points put Ashland out in front again and the half closed 9 to 6 after McMillen cuged a free throw.

Big Third Period

The Hilltoppers went strong in the third quarter in spite of their stalling tactics. Ling scored a fielder and Bear countered. Thomas again entered the scoring circle and looped a free throw to place the visitors out in front 12 to 8. Campbell got a basket which Smith followed with his third free throw contribution. Campbell found the bucket as the period closed 16 to 9.

Harding gained a couple of points when Smith scored a field goal. Ashland was running Harding ragged with its stalling tactics. Lindsey fouled McMillen giving the Hilltoppers another point. Dolby's free throw was followed by a goal by Ling. Clay completed the scoring for the game with a charity toss.

The contest was the fifth league engagement Harding has lost. The locals have turned in two victories.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 14—The Wittenberg college basketball team took its 16th victory of the season here last night, defeating the University of Detroit quintet, 30 to 21. The first half was nearly even, with Wittenberg holding a 13 to 10 advantage. Kreeger led the Ohioans' scoring with 10 points.

Morral Sets Scoring Record, Beats Prospect 70-28

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

CLINGING doggedly to its slender hold on first place in the Buckeye conference basketball race, Ohio Wesleyan's quintet will face the University of Cincinnati in Delaware tonight. The Bishops must defeat Cincinnati and turn back to Denison next week if they are to hope even for a tie for the Buckeye title.

Stopping Schuck, Cincinnati's center, who is six feet six inches tall is the biggest problem confronting the Bishops in their clash with the Bearcats. They must also keep close watch on Nelson, forward and one of the high scorers of the conference.

Although last minute rallies by opposing teams have cost Ohio Wesleyan its last two Buckeye starts against Miami and Ohio University, Coach Ray Detrick will not shift his lineup but give the regulars a chance to redeem themselves at Cincinnati's expense. The Bishops defeated Cincinnati in an overtime game earlier in the season.

A few weeks ago a young fighter from California by the name of Max Baer was hurried into New York amid a lot of ballyhoo, loudly proclaimed a second Dempsey. He had the style of Dempsey and the punch of the former ruler of heavyweights, said his backers. All he needed, to make him champion, so they said, was to give him fights.

They started him off by tossing him in the ring against Ernie Schaff and the latter promptly plastered him all over the ring. The enthusiasm quieted slightly after the poor opening but he was given another opportunity to make good followed soon by a third one.

• • •

Now that the third fight is completed there is only one thing definite about Baer. He is just another ham and egger. He might learn enough in the future to make a fighter but he is so far away from Dempsey now that it isn't even funny. He can retrace his steps back to California and climb into the rings with the rest of the palookas without any one doing any loud wailing over his departure from the rings of the metropolis. Another hope faded and gone.

Caledonia Divides Bill with Business College

Caledonia High school stepped out of the Marion county cage league last night for a pair of games with the Marion Business College teams, winning one and losing one. D. Baird led the scores in the boys' game with 16 points while point honors in the girls' encounter go to Lou Mautz who had nine markers to her credit.

Chicago Tossers Out To Avenge Former Beating Tonight in Chicago.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14 — Chicago's Maroons will attempt to slip Northwestern's Big Ten leading basketball team a comic valentine tonight in the shape of the Wildcats' first conference defeat.

The pair met at Evanston last week with Northwestern winning by 31 to 16. The Maroons, however, held Northwestern without a field goal in the first period, and with the advantage of their own floor, may give the Purple a tough battle.

Indiana and Minnesota tied in second place with four victories and two defeats at the halfway point in the race, will be in action tonight. The Hoosiers will go to Lafayette hoping to avenge a beating administered by Purdue last week at Bloomington. Minnesota will seek its second triumph of the campaign over Wisconsin at Madison. Each has won one game out of six, and appear evenly matched. The Hawkeyes will have whatever advantage its own floor affords.

MARTEL IS BEATEN BY WALDO 25 TO 17

Martel Girls Score Initial Victory of Year; Kirkpatrick Splits Twin Bill.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

WALDO High school boys eased themselves back into the running for the championship of the Eastern half of the Marion county basketball circuit last night by handing the Martel quintet a neat 25 to 17 walloping on the Waldo court.

Martel girls finally came through with a victory, winning from Waldo 21 to 19 in one of the best girls' games played in the county league this season.

The two opposing centers of the Martel-Waldo girls contest, Mary Ellen Reed and Doris Shults outshone all other players on the floor. These two stellar performers vied for scoring honors and also were easily the best players on the court. Reed scored 13 and Shults 18 points. Martel led the game all of the way but Waldo threatened seriously late in the final period.

Waldo Boys Win

Waldo handed the Martel boys a thorough beating, even more so than the score indicates. The green-clad warriors turned in a sorry exhibition of ball handling, all of the players showing a decided tendency to boot the sphere whenever they attempted to receive a pass. Burkhart of Martel, usually a reliable forward missed numerous scoring opportunities as did the rest of his team mates, mainly on account of inability to follow the ball.

Caris and Conklin turned in good games for Waldo but both were outscored by Gerfen. Conklin, a midget forward played an excellent floor game although guarded by a man much larger than himself.

Waldo jumped into the lead early in the game and was never headed. Martel attempted to stage a last period rally but Waldo broke up most of their efforts to score.

Two Girls' Games End in Tie Scores; LaRue Boys Upset Green Camp Opponents.

MORRAL High school cagers broke loose last night on the Morral court against Prospect to score their seventh consecutive victory and break the league scoring record for the season by collecting a total of 70 points. Prospect could garner but 28 against the Morral outfit.

There never was any doubt as to the eventual outcome of the game although the score was more onesided than had been expected. Morral, with Wood and McWherter occupying the leading roles, clicked in an almost flawless fashion, scoring points at will against the opposition. Wood was high scorer of the game with 27 points.

Prospect girls put on a stronger show of strength against Morral than has usually been the case this season and held the Morral girls to a 21-21 tie. According to the rules under which county girls' compete Morral is the winner as it collected three more field goals than the opponents. Shepard of Prospect was high scorer with 14 points.

Kirkpatrick split even in a twin bill with Claridon, the boys tramping on the opponents 25 to 12 while the Claridon girls continued their title march with a 20 to 16 victory.

Hill of Kirkpatrick topped the point-getters with a total of 10 points gained on five field goals. Kirkpatrick clung to its lead in the East half of the circuit as a result of the win.

LaRue turned in the biggest surprise of the evening by defeating Green Camp 32 to 26. Green Camp and LaRue girls finished their game in an 18-18 deadlock but Green Camp had the largest number of field goals and is given the game.

MOUNTS BEAT ASHLAND

ASHLAND, O., Feb. 14—Mount Union college's basketball team won its tenth consecutive Ohio conference game here last night, from Ashland, 29 to 22. Ashland put up a hard battle, holding Mount Union to a 13 to 11 margin at the half.

VINCE DUNDEE GETS UNPOPULAR DECISION IN 10-ROUND FIGHT

Len Harvey, British Middleweight Champ, Loses Second Bout to Italian.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—They gave Vince Dundee the decision in Madison Square Garden last night but Len Harvey, hale Briton, got the cheers.

While one of the best crowds of a lean indoor season jeered and booed, Dundee was given his second straight verdict over the Briton middleweight champion after a twelve-round battle which Harvey seemed to have won by a comfortable margin.

Harvey, making all the fight, pounded Dundee over a major portion of the distance and at the end had earned seven rounds in the Associated Press score card. Dundee had four and one was even.

Whatever the justice of the decision, it must be said that Dundee fought a courageous and game battle. Spilled on the floor twice, in his first meeting with Harvey a few weeks ago, Dundee took everything the Britisher had to offer last night.

Although Dundee never went down, there were several occasions when it looked as though he might. In the third, Harvey nailed him with a right that had the Baltimore Italian in distress. Again in the fifth, it took all of Dundee's ring experience to survive a storm of leaguers. Dundee rallied but in the eleventh ran into another crackling right that did him no good.

A crowd of 11,500 saw the battle, spectacular at times, and scarcely ever dull.

A NEW "RACKET"

Helen Hicks, one of America's outstanding women golfers, shows she can swing a tennis racquet in the same queenly fashion through which she became one of the most outstanding women golfers of America. Her desertion of the links is not permanent as she will soon start teeing off in the golf tournaments at St. Augenstine, Fla.

GALION TAKES GAME FROM MANSFIELD BY SCORE OF 24 TO 19

Bucyrus Is Victim for Seventh Time This Season, Losing to Shelby 25 to 15.

WHILE Harding was losing to Ashland last night on The Star court to allow the Hilltoppers to retain an unblemished record Galion handed Mansfield the short end of a 24 to 19 count on the Galion court and Shelby trimmed the lowly Bucyrus crew 25 to 15

Galion assumed command of the situation right at the start of the game and held a comfortable lead throughout the first half. The score at the half was 13 to 8 in favor of the Orangemen.

Mansfield turned loose a swift moving attack in the third period that swept Galion off its feet and deadlocked the count at 18-18 at the end of the period.

Galion put an end to the Mansfield rally in the fourth period and left the Tygers trailing soon after the final frame opened. The Murphymen hit the net for only one bucket in the last frame.

BUCYRUS IS LOSER

Shelby Trails in First But Wins 25-15 from Lowly Redmen.

If the present basketball season was due to continue for about a half dozen more games instead of three as the schedule now calls for Bucyrus might be able to chalk up a victory. The Redmen led Ashland last week for a single period and then collapsed to let the Hilltoppers win. Last night the Bucktown boys held the lead over Shelby for two periods before faltering to allow Shelby to win the game 25 to 15.

Bucyrus took the lead in the first period by a 3-2 margin and increased slightly in the second to lead at the half 9 to 6.

Shelby closed in on the Redmen in the third period and assumed the advantage by a single point at the three-quarter mark of the game. The score was 15-14 when the third frame ended. Jim Miller trained his scoring eye on the basket in the last period and soon Bucyrus was trailing the 1930 champions of the league.

CENTRAL WINS

Marion Junior High Five Winner Over Mansfield 23-22

Central Junior High basketball team avenged a defeat handed them earlier in the season by the Simpson Junior High team of Mansfield last night by beating the out-of-town team 23 to 22 on the Y. M. C. A. court here.

Central enjoyed a big advantage over the Mansfield Juinor team in the first three periods but allowed itself to be almost beaten in the final frame by failure to halt a Mansfield rally.

Whitcum was high scorer for Central with 10 points.

SALES WAVES CAUSES DROP

Losses Up to Point Made by Numerous Issues on Big Board

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—Further selling reduced prices fractions to more than a point in many issues on the New York stock exchange today in fairly active turnover.

A few issues made gains, including Auburn automobile which was up two points at 178½; Worthington Pump up one at 94¼, and a few others up fractionally.

Heavy selling came into Radio Corporation and the issue broke nearly a point to 18. This unloading was induced by decision of the U. S. circuit court of appeals upholding decision of a lower court that patent pooling among Radio Corporation, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, American Telephone and several other companies in manufacture of radio tubes was in violation of the Clayton anti-trust act.

1 DEAD, 5 MISSING AFTER CLOUDBURST

Wall of Water Roars into Arizona Village; Buildings Wrecked.

By The Associated Press.

YUMA, Ariz., Feb. 14—A cloudburst sent a wall of water down a canyon and through the village of Wellton, 38 miles east of here, last night, and otherwise wrought havoc in southern Arizona. At least one person drowned and five were missing.

Rain had fallen for an hour in Wellton when the roar of rushing water was heard. Within a few minutes a wall of water six feet high and 250 yards wide tumbled out of a flat-bottomed canyon running from the rocky hills into the city.

The water swirled through the streets, washing away a dozen cottages, demolishing two business buildings ripping up a mile and a half of railroad track and highway, and tearing out power and telephone lines.

Automobiles caught in the first rush were carried away and wrecked. The one known victim was drowned when his car was washed into a ditch.

Residents of Wellton scrambled to the roofs of their houses and remained there overnight. One motorist climbed a tree and perched there until dawn. The town for a time was a lake six feet deep.

John Gilbert, Inn Claire Agree To Separate After Short Marriage.

By The Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 14—Ina Claire and John Gilbert, who flew to Las Vegas, Nevada, in May 1929, and were married, agreed last night to separate.

They had been maintaining separate residences for several months free to visit each other as they chose, a plan which Miss Claire termed in Chicago, on her way from New York to Hollywood, as a "perfect experiment."

Gilbert did not meet her on her arrival here and she said she would telephone him, "and then, I think I'll give out the statement which the public seems to want." Later she issued the following statement.

"On my arrival in Los Angeles today, Mr. Gilbert and I agreed to separate. Any difficulties and misunderstandings we have had probably at least are as much my fault as his."

The Stars Say—

Sunday, Feb. 15

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows a degree of turmoil and confusion aggravated by indulgence in a proclivity toward quarrels, rashness and intemperance of speech and action. This aggressive and violent tendency may have the result of involving danger to contracts, writing or business connections. The finances are also imperiled.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year of disruption, turmoil and confusion, precipitated largely by a tendency to impetuosity, rash and quarrelsome behavior. Be careful with writings and papers, guard against enmities and safeguard the finances. A child born on this day may be quick and clever, but it may require early training and discipline in the matter of integrity, equanimity and self-control, else it will jeopardize its career through enmities and retaliation.

Monday, Feb. 16

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is an interesting one, promising a sudden visitation, which may cause change of environment, interest and personal associations. A loosening up of congestions may make way for new projects and adventure, which will prove of unexpected benefit. The personal affairs may likewise flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a pleasant and profitable change, with a stabilizing of the fortunes following the removal of some old obstacle to success. The personal affiliations will be particularly fortunate and happy. A child born on this day should be well equipped for a happy and successful career, despite a disposition to be free and prodigal with its substance. It will be ingenious, clever and industrious as well.

Of the 6,295,352 automobiles built in the world last year, a gain or more than a million over 1928, more than 89 per cent were products of the United States and Canada.

FRAUD CHARGE NOT TO BE TRIED HERE

Man Alleged To Have Victimized Local Radio Dealers Will Not Be Returned.

Although Marion police have asked for custody of Byron Rose, 27, charged with operating a confidence game to obtain 18 radios from Marion and other Ohio radio dealers, there is little possibility that he will be returned here for prosecution, police said today.

Rose came to grief at Washington C. H., where his arrest exposed the game he is alleged to have used to obtain radios from various Ohio dealers and dispose of them through a Cincinnati music store. Rose is to be tried in Washington C. H.

Two Marion merchants, the Monarch Printing & Supply Co. and the Standard Home Utilities, were victimized of radio sets Jan. 24 when Rose paid Marion a visit with his ruse.

Neither of the firms have recovered their sets, which undoubtedly, officials say, have been sold through the Cincinnati store to customers. These sets are liable to confiscation if found. An effort is being made to trace the sets.

Max Frank, 32, operator of the music store in Cincinnati through which Rose is said to have sold his sets, is being prosecuted at Cincinnati.

Rose, merchants say, would take only two popular makes of radios, as Frank sold only these two kinds.

Breach of the marriage contract is charged by Harry C. Lawrence in a divorce suit filed yesterday in common pleas court against Lillian Lawrence.

The plaintiff states his wife, to whom he was married on Sept. 6, brought five children by a former marriage into his home in spite of his objection. The two oldest children, he said, united with their mother in an attitude of hostility toward him.

Finally, after all attempts at conciliation had ceased according to the petition, the plaintiff left the house with two sons by a former marriage and took rooms elsewhere.

He asked the court for an injunction restraining the defendant from disposing of his personal property while the suit is pending. He is represented by Attorney Homer E. Johnson.

Custody of two minor children is asked in another divorce petition filed by Edna Manley against Arch Manley. They were married at Columbus on Feb. 23, 1927. The plaintiff, who is represented by the law firm of Carhart & Warner, also asked and was granted an injunction restraining the defendant from molesting her and the children.

VALVE-IN-HEAD Buick STRAIGHT EIGHT

February 7, 1931

Dear Buick Owner:

Because of its importance, we decided to inform you now that the present line of 1931 Buick Straight Eights will not be replaced by new models this summer.

Buick, as you know, has introduced its new cars on August 1st, year after year. But inasmuch as these new Straight Eight models have met with such spontaneous approval by thousands everywhere, Buick has decided to continue manufacturing the present Eights throughout the summer and coming fall.

This is mighty good news to thousands of Buick owners because they will buy new Buicks now with the knowledge that there will be no model change next summer.

They will find in these new Buicks a degree of performance that is certain to give them a genuine thrill. All have the safe, silent-shift Syncro-Mesh transmission. All have Valve-in-Head Straight Eight engines. And all have the famous insulated Bodies by Fisher.

So well has the 1931 line been received that, out of every 100 eights sold in Buick's price class, 56 are Buicks.

May we suggest that you drive the Eight as Buick Builds It? Your Buick dealer will be very glad to have you take the wheel and learn at first hand how very much Buick Straight Eight performance adds to the joy of motoring.

Very truly yours,

Prepare To Meet Thy God

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. TYLER GATES
Pastor St. Paul's English Lutheran Church.
Text: Amos IV:12, "Prepare to meet thy God."

THESE are the words of the prophet Amos spoken to the chosen people of God. Think of it, the nation Israel, God's own people had decayed morally and spiritually and had settled down complacently in luxury and ease into a lifeless observance of ritual and religious sacrifices. Oppression of the poor and heartless indifference to suffering, gluttony, drunkenness, cheap frivolity and degrading adultery brought forth from the earnest lips of Amos a timely warning. Religious worship and sacrifices would not compensate. God speaking through Amos says, "I hate, I despise your feast days and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies." For them "that are at ease in Zion" Amos pronounces nothing but God's wrath and certain destruction. They who should have been prepared were utterly unfit and unprepared to meet their God. There is little wonder Amos was not popular with the kings and people of the northern kingdom. Such bald truth is seldom appreciated

There are many we fear today who are not prepared to meet their God, men who have been trying to fool the public and their friends by hiding their shame behind an impressive Sunday righteousness. There are men of our Christian nation, members of churches who oppress the poor, throw them out of work by the thousands, who allow men and their families to starve while they sit back in luxury and satisfy their gluttonous passions for "things of this life." "Woe unto them that are at ease in Zion—prepare to meet thy God." And they with their greed and shame will meet their God, the greatest nation on earth today faces strife, turmoil and destruction unless their hearts be changed and they turn from their evil ways. No nation nor individual can long stand in the presence of God and tolerate such iniquity.

FARM DROUTH CRISIS AHEAD

Most Urgent Need of Southeastern Ohio Expected in Two Months.

Editor's Note: This is the fourth and last of a series on conditions in Ohio's drouth area.

• • •

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 14—The entire farming industry of southeastern Ohio, which has suffered from the prolonged drouth, will need a major share of financial relief two months hence.

By that time it is ready and will receive relief from the clouds in the form of rain, and if it doesn't come the spring crop is going to be a doleful one.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in the stricken area since last summer to feed and clothe unemployed farmers, men, women and children. The farmer who has his livestock and his own livestock as the minor receipient. The townspeople, afflicted with incalculable ills of business and the farmers who staked their comforts on a crop failure.

On Meager Fare

Few farm owners have any money they have been getting on pork products and other foodstuffs that could be sold now that the growing season is approaching they will have funds to buy seed and fertilizer.

Thousands of applications will be forthcoming from the drouth area for participation in the federal fund set aside for the purpose of financing that rains make it possible again and that crops will be forthcoming for those who have the average farm owner looks hopefully ahead to the next attempt to reestablish himself.

Everywhere he finds the failure of the timothy hay crop to have been one of the chief factors in his distress. In ordinary times he could sell this season he had to buy feed to keep his stock alive, and those who could not pay the cash for hay bought straw. Not many dollars by shipping hay at the reduced freight rates offered by the railroads but a number of them approached the end with their stocks of feed all about gone.

Hay Production Low

The 1930 hay production was about half of the previous year and almost of the loss was sustained in the southern region. The corn crop was 40 million bushels less than 1929. Wheat was down 6,000,000 bushels under but the oats and barley crops were better.

Some of the gardens was a severe setback to the farmers large and small. For many products ordinarily find a ready place in canning jars and provide food for winter. This year was a different story, and one particularly to the farmers.

Practically farmers were left in a bad way because the most of them could get credit and the farm family finding himself with nothing to eat was dumped into the laps of those who had no one to help them except the Red Cross, the organized relief societies and the welfare forces of the county and township governments.

FIRST STRAWBERRIES HERE 35 CENTS PINT

Scarcity of Spring Commody Keeps Price Up; Eggs Still at Low Figure.

The arrival of strawberries to retail at 30 and 35 cents a pint was included in Marion market activity this week. Because they are the first of the season and are scarce, the price is decidedly high.

Eggs were slightly changed as the week ended, the top price dropping two cents to a mark of 24 cents. Eggs continued to sell as low as 20 cents, with some few grocers dropping prices even below that figure.

Marion shoppers felt none of the unevenness of orange prices on the wholesale market this week. Wholesale quotations varied, first upward and then down, but grocers held retail prices unchanged.

New cabbage from southern states was offered this week at six and seven cents a pound. Mushroom prices dropped five cents, to land at a price range of 60 to 70 cents a pound.

Beets and carrots in bunches from the south arrived this week to sell at 10 cents a bunch.

Daily Proverb—"He that payeth beforehand shall have his work ill done."

Testimony presented this week to the senate committee investigating food costs showed that the general level of food prices has fallen 15.3 per cent. since September of 1929. Now who would have thought that?

Archaeologists, excavating in Mesopotamia, have discovered unbroken painted bowls dating back 5,000 years. Evidently civilization had its inception much further back in the past than has been generally assumed.

The five fraternity oases at the University of Michigan have been closed to remain closed until next September and then to be opened only on probation. The booze stuff is a breeder of trouble, no matter from what point it may be viewed.

Driven by a goading conscience, Herbert B. Adams traveled from Louisiana to New Bedford, Massachusetts, to make confession in court that he had stolen $4,000 from his employers in that Bay State city ten years ago. The punishment which conscience inflicts is one even the most-hardened criminal is unable to escape, and almost any punishment a court may inflict is trifling in comparison with it

Less than twenty-four hours after he held up a bank at Fort Frances in Ontario, Canada, Robert Tikowski was in the penitentiary under a sentence of five years and twenty lashes. Quick punishment such as this is a real deterrent of crime

A report shows that only two-thirds as much beer was consumed in the United States last year as during pre-Volstead days. Well, beer is mighty bulky. There just naturally has to be some limit to the bootleggers' endeavors.

The Electrical Securities corporation, controlled by the General Electric company as a medium through which its employes may obtain diversified investments, made a net profit of $2,200,756 in 1930 against a similar profit of $1,417,789 in 1929, in both cases exclusive of profits from the sale and exchange of securities. A decided gain for a year of depression. But then, the public simply has to have necessities such as automobiles, radios, electric refrigerators, stoves, heaters and an endless lot of other articles essential to present-day living!

Fewer Grade-Crossing Fatalities.

The Railway Age in a recent issue editorially cited Interstate Commerce commission statistics to show that, whereas the number of fatalities in automobile accidents is increasing, the number of fatalities at grade crossings is falling off. The statistics stated showed that the deaths in all automobile accidents in 1930 numbered 32,500, an increase of four per cent. over the record of 1929, and that the crossing fatalities for the first nine months of 1930, the latest figures attainable, numbered 1,448 against 1,711 during the corresponding period in 1929, a decrease of fifteen per cent.

The purpose of the Railway Age editorial is made plain when it declares that the decline in grade-crossing deaths indicates that the combined efforts of railway and public authorities, especially the former, to educate the automobile-using public to the necessity of exercising proper precautions when approaching a grade crossing are bearing fruit. It also shows, the Railway Age holds, that a reduction in accidents at such points is possible without the elimination of the crossings themselves if proper efforts are made.

In a word, the purpose of the editorial is to show that there is no occasion for a general elimination of grade crossings—a work which would be impossible in the present financial condition of the railroads and under the regulations from which they suffer.

We are not disposed to question the contention of the Railway Age that the motoring public is exercising greater care today in approaching grade crossings than it did in the past, or its conclusion that "more important than any other fact, however, these figures show that the problem of safety of highway travel is far broader than that of accident control at grade crossings, and that the public authorities must look elsewhere for the solution of this problem."

But granting all this, we can not overlook the possibility that the decrease in grade-crossing accidents may be due in part to the fact that the railroads are running fewer trains at present, and have been for over a year past, than they did when they were sharing in a greater degree of prosperity. Certainly the freight business of the railroads is not what it once was and many of their passenger trains have been abandoned. Not only this, but passenger service on some of the less important passenger lines has been entirely eliminated. Naturally, the fewer the number of trains, the fewer the chances for grade-crossing accidents.

A State Police Force.

Establishment of a state police force in Ohio is a present possibility. From time to time during recent years, as proposals looking to formation of such an organization have been made, public opinion for and against it has been crystallized. The present state of opinion is undetermined, though it probably is more favorable than at any time in the last five years.

Representative James A. Jones, of Portage county, has introduced a bill in the house providing for a state police force of not fewer than fifty members nor more than 300 members, to be paid from the general revenue fund until such a time as it may become self-supporting. The state grange, the farm bureau and the farm bloc members of the legislature are expected to back it. It is helpful to know, in this connection, that Representative Jones, partner in a structural steel concern, located in Ravenna, is not immediately associated with any of the groups understood to be favorable to his bill. It may be presumed that he represents fairly one portion of urban attitude toward a measure presenting many opportunities for a clash between urban and rural opinion.

The functions of a state police force are too well known to require description. Representative Jones' bill provides for a body "to maintain safety on and protection of the highways;" "to make arrests without warrants for all violations of the laws of Ohio, which they may witness, and they shall have also general police powers, which may be exercised at any time," and "to conserve life, property and the natural beauties of the state."

It is important to note that the force "shall not be used as a posse in any municipality having a regularly-organized police force," and "that no officer or member shall be used in an industrial dispute." The last definition of duty is a concession to organized labor which, in past years, has opposed other constabulary bills on the grounds that a state police force would be used unfairly in strikes and riots. These exemptions are in the bill's favor.

It will be well, also, if those supporting it will avoid the imputation that a state police force could be maintained by costs, forfeits and other sources of legal revenue open to law-enforcing agencies. Speed traps would be a natural outgrowth of such a policy. State police are intended to protect citizens—not be a nuisance.

Representative Jones' bill appears sound enough to withstand the hard knocks it is destined to receive, and it deserves the careful consideration of the legislature. Every successful small-town bank robbery, numberless automobile accidents and a score of law violations occuring outside the jurisdiction of municipal police forces cry the need of protection that a state constabulary could supply if it were to function in a proper way. Consideration of this most recent proposal for its establishment will do a great deal to crystallize favorable opinion more extensively than ever before.

Another gangster taken for a ride up in Chicago. This is to be said for the Windy City's criminal element, it's a mighty factor in the restriction of its own growth.

In clear weather, these days, Venus will be visible periodically up to 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the section of the heavens westwardly of the sun and approximately about sixteen times the apparent distance of the moon north of the lunar orbit; but the difficulty of seeing it with the naked eye is not so much one of eyesight as of locating the planet.

The fact that the thugs who bludgeoned a mail clerk in Washington and got away with three registered sacks of mail containing halves of old bills of the face vlue of $807,000 which were worthless to them is a tribute to the forethought of the treasury people who have old and mutilated currency halved and the halves returned to the treasury in separate shipments. In this particular instance the proverbial ounce of prevention was worth several tons of cure.

Gleb Krzhizanovsky, generally recognized as the author of the soviet Russian five-year plan has been demoted, but it isn't known whether his demotion was due to his authorship of that plan or of the plan to present to the world the alleged plot, in which a group of engineers were charged and made confession to treason, which evoked the laughter of the outside world.

Radio People Worried.

There can no longer be question but what the steadily increasing ratio of advertising to entertainment in radio programs is lessening interest in broadcasting, and that the situation is a source of worry to the radio people. This is not conjecture, but a fact verified by the statements of those occupying prominent places in connection with the radio industry—men high in the manufacturing, the broadcasting and the publicity branches of the industry and those in the regulation thereof.

There was a time when listeners-in were content with almost anything in the way of programs, but they have acquired sophistication; they are not now so easily satisfied and are far more selective than formerly. Today the regular listener-in is picking the cream of the programs, and when any of such programs being to show an overly large element of advertising, his interest in it begins to wane.

Many suggestions have been made looking to the remedying of the situation, one of which is government control with a slight tax on each set to pay for all-day and all-night programs free from advertising, but while there is a limited element of the citizenship of the country enwrapped with anything and everything that savors of government ownership or government control, it is safe to say that the great majority of the people of the United States are becoming more and more opposed to any further participation of government in business than that from which the country is at present suffering.

The more popular plan would be the upbuilding of public interest by the broadcasting people themselves. This plan would have every advantage for the quicker attainment of the desired end.

Editorial Opinion.

CHANCELLOR BRUENING WINS.

Chancellor Bruening's victory over the extremists in the German reichstag is one of the most hopeful signs that have come out of Europe recently. Compelled to carry a tremendous burden of war debt, which has tended to depress business and make her people restless, Germany is still regarded as the bulwark of Western Europe against communism. Consequently it is reassuring to find the moderate parties in the reichstag uniting to protest a cabinet in which many of them are not represented. The government was attacked on both flanks, with the fanatical ardor which creates and sustains extreme partisanship. The center held. The anti-republican factions were routed.

After the September elections, at which Adolf Hitler and his National Socialists increased their representation to 107 seats and the Communists rose to seventy-six seats, a wave of apprehension swept across Europe. Would these extreme parties, with the assistance of forty-one Hugenberg Nationalists, seize the reins, tear up the treaty of Versailles and precipitate another European war? This feeling was most pronounced in France. Those who entertained it placed too little confidence in the firmness of the president of the reich and its chancellor and in the mental and fundamental soundness of the majority of the German people. While French cabinets have fallen, Chancellor Bruening's has outridden the worst storms that the Communists and Nationalists have been so far able to lash their partisans into.

The threat of the National Socialists to set up a separate parliament at Weimar need not be taken very seriously. Their leader burned his fingers in one putsch and is not likely to start another. They are more likely to continue in the reichstag the obstructive tactics that prevailed in our house of representatives until Speaker Reed put down his considerable foot and which now survive in Washington only in the senate. They can make themselves obnoxious, with respect to both domestic and foreign policies. They can seriously hamper the orderly process of legislation. As long as the moderates work together the extremists will butt their heads into a stone wall. The center parties may fight among themselves over minor issues, but when it becomes a choice between the republic on the one hand, and the monarchy or a proletarian state on the other, they have shown that they can bury the hatchet in a common enemy. — Detroit Free Press.

NEGRO IN FRENCH CABINET.

A native Senegalese Negro, Blaise Diagne, has been named under-secretary of state for the colonies in the new French cabinet of Premier Laval. This is the first time in the history of the French republic that a Negro has held cabinet rank. The nomination throws an increasing light on France's policy toward her African colonies. She confers equality of citizenship upon her African nationals under her flag, and that citizenship is of France, not of Africa. Such a policy has been a tower of strength to the French in their work of pacific colonization, and this latest proof of its application in practice will tend still further to strengthen the bonds that bind the French colonies to La Patrie.—Montreal Star.

Whooping Cough.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Whooping cough is a disease considered by most mothers as a normal happening of childhood. This is the wrong attitude to assume, for too often the disease proves more serious than was expected. It is not safe deliberately to expose the child to whooping cough.

The disease is easily passed from one child to another. It usually lasts from six to eight weeks. It runs through three definite periods. In the first period it resembles very closely an ordinary cold with a cough. It is very difficult at this time to say definitely that the child has whooping cough. This period lasts about two weeks and during this time the cough gradually increases and pretty soon becomes quite severe.

In the second period the cough becomes very annoying, stronger and occurs at definite times. It is easy to recognize the disease at this stage because of the characteristic "whoop." The third period of whooping cough is described usually as the "decline" of the disease. The cough now becomes less severe and gradually disappears.

Whooping cough in young children is dangerous in that it often leaves the child less resistent to other diseases. More emphasis should be placed upon this disease than has been in the past. As I have suggested, this is particularly true in regard to the prevention of the ailment. This disease is too dangerous to infants, delicate children and those having latent tuberculosis. Every effort must be made to prevent it.

There is a good deal of skepticism as to the value of the whooping cough vaccine. There are many doctors, however, who believe the disease may be prevented by the injections. If given to a child before exposure to the disease, it may be prevented in many instances, they believe. The injection is simple, painless and causes no discomfort whatsoever. The treatment may be obtained from any local physician or your local health officer.

It is worth while to use this treatment in a community where whooping cough is prevalent. If it is to be used, it should be given regardless of whether the child has or has not been exposed to the disease. We can never tell when such exposure will take place, and it is always best to be on the safe side.

New Light on Evolution.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

There is a famous law, named for its formulator, Dollo, known as the "law of the irreversibility of evolution." Evolution is said to be irreversible; but it is now believed by scientists that its direction can and does change. Animated discussion among anthropologists is going on.

Indeed it has been suggested instead of man being derived from the anthropoid ape, the precise reverse is the case. Henry Fairfield Osborn, however, has recently invoked Dollo's "law of the irreversibility of evolution" as debarring the whole anthropoid ape group from human ancestry on account of their loss of certain anatomical characters which have been retained by man.

At the same time, it must not be forgotten that Professor Osborn has recently made an attack on what is known as the "ape-man theory" of evolution.

This position has been misinterpreted by certain groups, notably preachers and journalists, who have leaped to the conclusion that the so-called Darwinian hypothesis of man's origin has been demolished. As a matter of fact, Osborn has frankly stated that he does not ignore the "overwhelming evidence of a remote community of origin between man and the anthropoid apes." The special theory which he combats is that feature of the Lamarck-Darwin hypothesis that man once passed into highly-specialized aboreal adaptations attained by the Miocene apes.

Indeed, we have only to compare the so-called diagram illustrating his present theory of the ascent and phylogeny of man, with the family tree of man advanced by Professor William K. Grogory, to note their essential similarity. Osborn places the point of initial differentiation of man and the anthropoid apes one geologic epic earlier than does Gregory.

It must be clear that Osborn's theory is not any revolutionary overturning of the Darwinian hypothesis of man's origin. The new version of the Lamarck-Darwin theory of man's origin is shared in its main features by Osborn, Professor Gregory, Sir Arthur Keith and Professor G. Elliott Smith.

Osborn unequivocally proclaims the strong evidence for an Eocene arboreal stage in our ancestry. He further asserts that in the forest remain all the backward, conservative types, while on the plateaus and uplands are found the alert, progressive, forward-looking types.

Much evidence continues to point strongly to the conclusion, as stated by Gregory, that, although man may have been a plateau-living biped for millions of years, his ancestry eventually merges with that of the conservative, forest-living, originally arboreal anthropoids.

One point of sharp difference occurs between the theory of Osborn and that of Keith, Gregory, Morton and others. This is in regard to what is known as brachiation or phase of development through the use of the arms. As first used by Keith brachiation means that method of progression in the trees in which the suspension grasp is employed by the arms, while the backbone is in general vertical to the plane of progression.

Keith and others regard brachiation, to a moderate extent, as an indispensable prerequisite for the assumption of erect bipedal posture on the ground. Osborn admits the existence of a common ancestral stock from which man and the anthropoid apes are both derived, but elliminates from the human line the "brachiating stage" through which the early anthropoid undoubtedly passed.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Sheridan as a Schoolboy.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Because his father's employment kept him away from home most of the time, the care and early teaching of Phil. H. Sheridan was in the hands of his mother, who fortunately was a woman of great common sense and fairly well educated. Later, when he was large enough to be sent to the village school, he fell into the hands of an old-fashioned Irish school master, named McNanly, who, while he was of kindly disposition, believed in strict discipline and observed the proverb: "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

He was paid only three dollars a term for each pupil in school, and with this small pay he was entitled to "board around" among the home of his pupils, this family taking him now and another later, as convenience on both sides suggested. But because of a previous acquaintance with the Sheridans in Ireland, he was stopping at the Sheridan home frequently.

Sheridan himself attested that the coming of the school master was always an occasion of uneasiness for him, for it very frequently happened that the comparing of notes between his mother and the teacher brought out the fact that often when his mother thought him in school and the master thought he was home sick, he was as a matter of fact up along the creek in company with several other choice young spirits, swimming or fishing, if it were summer, and skating or rabbit-hunting if it were winter, and of course such discoveries were followed by applications of discipline both at home and at school.

These little peccadilloes were rather the outgrowth of good spirits and the normal inclination of the boy to play, and Sheridan estimating his youth in late life felt that he was not particularly a bad boy, and as a matter of fact, he did secure a sufficient amount of knowledge to enable him to pass the entrance requirements at West Point.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Feb. 14 — At my time of ... some one would suggest a raccoon coat ... was pointed out they were not only worn ... college boys, but by grownups—men of affa... such as Otto Kahn, his brother Agha, ... explorers, bootleggers and other potentates.

I'm the sort who believes all the poppycock I hear. Nobody ever took the trouble to explain the facts of life. Anyway it is ... believing things. To this way I am ... to tears by a St. Bernard dog. It's the ... of that Third Reader story.

Remember? Old Rover misses his master while a snow piles up. He whimpers a ... and plods on through the shrieking ... locating him fifteen miles away buried under a drift. He digs him out, topples him across his back and away they go to a warm fireside. Good old Rover! Or maybe it's Fido.

Secretly I have been waiting a chance at a raccoon coat, but thought it west to wait until the college craze wore off. If I bought one during the height, somebody might send me back to Yale. I only needed to hear elders were taking them up.

And I lit a shuck for a clothing store. "Something Christmassy in a raccoon coat," I told the clerk, airily as though the hot blood of youth ran fast and I was far removed from cast-iron deers, music boxes and heavy flannels in the winter time. "For yourself?" he inquired unshagging his eye-brows.

"Certainly"—there was no turning back. I had gone too far—"Don't you keep them for grown ups?" He said they did, but somehow didn't put his soul into it. In fact I detected a sly wink at a fellow clerk as he waved, "This way, please!"

What I wanted was something long, warm, protective. All my overcoats are short, thin and split up the back. I needed one that would trail the ground, smell like a timber wolf and from which I could shoot out my head or withdraw it, turtle fashion. I got

• • •

If I know great-coats this was a honey. When you got into it you didn't walk you barged—like Old Ma, the Ringling elephant, swaying and lumbering into the arena. When I looked at my hands they seemed canal claws and my feet could pass for those of the Singer midget. When I walked before the array of mirrors the clerks gathered around. And I heard a craning customer inquire, "What does he do—advertise cigars or something?"

• • •

Never did I imagine a raccoon coat could inspire such street tittering. For years I endured hoots of spat jeerers, but compared to —I must have my japery—raccoon shouters they are a picnic. I hadn't cleared the door way until a smartie cracked: "Paul McGlough without his straw hat!"

• • •

To change from a lightweight seer-sucker to a raccoon without practice is not easy. In two blocks I worked up a perspiration. At the fourth block I was steaming. And at the end of the sixth wobbly. Things began to swim and there was a ding-donging in my ears. There were several blocks to go, but I determined to carry on bravely—the McIntyres are like that except around Easter. But the world was growing blacker. The sky lowered, didn't look any bigger than Passaic's. Finally I reeled against a billboard. Out of the fog came a far away voice: "Anything the matter, buddy?"

"Nothing important," I gasped weakly. "Only I'm slowly suffocating. Tell the folks to keep stiff upper lips just as though I were right with them."

• • •

Well, maybe that is exaggerated, but I was about an inch from a real swoon. I think the headlines as a throwback to copy reading days and I saw the streamer: "Venerable Journal Goes Collegiate; Found Delirious."

But the big jolt was when I staggered home to my apartment. The dogs were awaiting when I threw open the door. The Sealyham gave a despairing yelp and fled under the bed. The Boston made a flank attack, leaped into the fur and looked foolish. My wife merely looked up from a book, murmured, "Rah, rah, rah!" and went on reading.—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Feb. 14—Every one who knows Senator Vandenberg, that tall, serious and bespectacled Michigander, probably is aware that the profession of journalism lies very close to his heart.

And they know, too, that his theory about the responsibility of a newspaper editor is one that he describes as "old-fashioned."

He says that:

"The editorial column of a newspaper has just as great a responsibility to its readers as is the responsibility to human society of a United States judge on the bench."

As newspaperman he won fame long before he came to the senate. At twenty-two he stepped up from city hall reporter to editor and general manager of the Grand Rapids Herald. Now he is chairman of the board of a group of newspapers in Michigan.

His editorials attracted attention in Washington and in the senate years before he came here. It is said that Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, made use of a Vandenberg editorial to clinch an argument against ratification of the League of Nations' covenant.

• • •

In view of this it is interesting to recall an incident which occurred on the floor of the senate the other day.

Walsh, of Montana, was in the midst of his fight to oust the three recently-appointed members of the federal power commission. Vandenberg followed his argument closely, frequently interrupting with questions.

Walsh read an editorial from an eastern paper which was a slap at the senate. In that blunt fashion so characteristic of him he said that the writer of the editorial disclosed "either dense ignorance of the question or unmitigated malice."

Key Pittman, of Nevada, jumped to his feet, smiling:

"I think the senator should reconsider the charge of malice. I do not believe a newspaper editor should be charged with malice without conclusive proof of it."

And his smile seemed to broaden as he added:

"I do not think it is out of the way to charge some of them with ignorance."

• • •

Vandenberg didn't say anything. He just sat there.

But George, of Georgia, saw an opportunity to get in a little crack himself. Arising and facing the Michigan senator seated across the aisle, he drawled:

"I congratulate the senator from Montana because the senator from Michigan, who is closely following the discussion, occupies a dual position.

"He is an able editor as well as a distinguished member of this body. Perhaps if we succeed in persuading him as a senator we may succeed in the same undertaking with him as an editor."

Subtle jibes these.

But how they delight in such things

Other Times, Other Manners!

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

So, literally, says the old French proverb (Autres temps, autres moeurs)—meaning that as times change, customs, too, are altered.

To few professions does this proverb apply so aptly as to that of funeral directing. The art of embalming, for instance, has been developed in this country only within the last half-century. The modern funeral establishment, as well, has no counterpart in the history of even a few decades ago. Methods, equipment, viewpoint, scope of service—all have radically improved.

The funeral director of today performs services which the "undertaker" of fifty years ago were unknown. No longer does he "undertake" to perform a very limited number of specific details. He is now looked to for the management and conduct of a funeral in its entirety—with the exception only of those rites which are of a strictly religious character.

GEN. C. R. EDWARDS IS TAKEN BY DEATH

division, was cited several times for its gallant work and its commander was honored twice by the French government and once by Belgium.

It was with keen disappointment that the doughboys of the Yankee division learned of the recall of General Edwards, who was one of the best loved division commanders of the American Expeditionary Forces. To his men he was just plain "Daddy" Edwards, and after he left them they insisted that it was his spirit that filled them with determination to carry on in their efforts to help win the war.

Like all young officers after graduation from West Point, General Edwards had a variety of assignments which included three years as professor of military science at Fordham university. In the Spanish-American war he took an active part in organizing and mobilizing units in the south and then as chief of staff to General Lawton went to the Philippine islands. There he took part in all the campaigns until General Lawton was killed.

Made Insular Chief

Returning to the United States, General Edwards in 1902 was made chief of the bureau of insular affairs to direct administration of the country's new possessions. He remained in that position until 1912 when, at his own request, he was transferred to line duty. In the years that followed he was stationed in Texas, the Hawaiian Islands and the Panama canal zone until 1917, when he was made commandant of the newly created department of the northeast.

It was in the latter capacity that he organized and trained the Yankee division for its service overseas.

General Edwards was born at Cleveland, O., Jan. 1, 1860, a descendant of the Jonathan Edwards family of New England. He was graduated at West Point in 1885 and was promoted through the grades to brigadier general, which rank he attained in 1906. He received temporary promotion to major general in 1917, was demoted to his regular rank after the World war and then given permanent rank as a major general in 1921.

In 1889 General Edwards married Miss Bessie R. Porter of Niagara Falls, N. Y. They had one daughter who enlisted as an army nurse in the World war. She died in 1918 while engaged in that service.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 14—Letters found in Akron early today gave police first tangible clues in the search for "Mary the blond," sweetheart of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, suspected killer of William E. Potter, former Cleveland councilman.

The letters, all signed with the name Prudence, in quotation marks, were written to a "girl friend" of the blond in Akron and were mailed from Dormont, a suburb of Pittsburgh, where Martin lived.

Police now know the identity of "Mary the Blond." She has been a familiar figure in Akron in recent years. Her capture, detectives believe, is only a matter of time.

Just Things

—BY EDNA S. DUTTON—

Etiquet

"PROPRIETY IN A NUTSHELL" is the title of an ancient little age-worn pamphlet which found its way to our desk recently and if the contents were not chronicled in such seriousness one might chortle gleefully. As it is one sneaks a couple of suppressed giggles. The foreword suggests that the reader, through perusal of the pages, may glean a few hints on the ordinary usages of refined people and makes it very plain that it is not the intention of the donors to offer any "personal insult or slur either directly or indirectly" but "on the other hand," distributes it "irrespective of business or social position." After perusing the contents the reader is requested to glance at the advertising on the front and back. If you would behave properly at the table you should "never lean back in your chair; always use fork to convey food to the mouth except when spoon is necessary; never use knife; never neglect or delay the use of your napkin; never blow with lips to cool coffee or victuals, stir until cool; never be afraid to take the last piece of bread on the plate; when asked to pass any dish, empty both hands before doing so; never enter diningroom with hat on; never put your knife or spoon into any dish on the table except what is intended for yourself only; never put your knife in the butter dish, lift butter to your plate by butter knife only, which all careful housekeepers will provide; do not divide a biscuit or piece of bread or cake by cutting, break with fingers; it is good taste to fold the napkin carelessly and place beside the plate when through eating. Parlor etiquet urges one to give heed to their dress by never appearing in the presence of ladies without a coat and never on any occasion refer to the clothing of any one present. Give ladies preference on all occasions and never hold private conversation when others are near, without an apology.

Voices

THE old slogan of a few years ago, "tell men what you eat and I'll tell you what you are," is a back number for sure now and folks of this day and moon are known by their voices. At least Mrs. Anne T. Renshaw of Washington, D. C. thinks so, and she should know for according to those who tell she coached some 350 speakers for the Coolidge presidential campaign. Doctors are the easiest persons to teach she affirms, being professional in an attentive mood to get what is in another persons's mind; lawyers are the hardest, being ever in a "combative" state of mind. A person with a sarcastic ring in his voice is not to be trusted: It is apt to be that of a liar or a weakling. Strong tones are indicative of a strong personality in an educated person but of a self-opionated character in a non-educated person. A voice full of tone color indicates an appreciation of artistic values. To be sure there are exceptions, for just imagine judging a traffic cop's character by the tone of voice he uses when you have just been caught going through the signal or jaywalking when late to your bridge party.

Valentines

IT'S another valentine day and running true to form we got ours. It was one of those funny ones which refers in no uncertain terms to your life of single blessedness, carries on with a great to-do about your kittenish antics in trying to attract the attention of the big, strong male of the species, and casts aspersions on your aristocratic nose. There is a little something to be thankful for in that the damsel is carrying a "pooch," much the type of Maggie's, instead of a cat or a parrot. The day is yet young so there may be others who wish to contribute.

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

CHAPTER 16

Hunting the Will

HASWELL considered Richmond's presentation of Blake's position. "Are you suggesting," he asked finally, "that the nephew murdered Miss Querdling, that he stole the will—or both?"

"What do you think?"

"Well, he began,' it is not easy to see how Vincent could have known about the will, if the girls did not, and if only the aunt and her lawyer knew. If he is in it, he must have been in league with one or both of the girls. I think the will is unsigned, because Miss Querdling would not have opposed her lawyers advice, and that it will be found, since there's little point in stealing an unsigned will."

"It is perplexing," sighed Richmond. "Yet, what about Blake and the murder? He benefits by it, was on the scene at the time and his explanation is weak."

"Let's admit he could have done it, said Jimmie "If so, was it through impulse or plan? The latter seems unlikely. His presence here would excite comment, yet he motors here and leaves the car on the road outside. A murderer would come in secret, probably disguised, and would try to cover his tracks."

"Suppose," said Richmond, "he did see the old lady and she turned his scheme down. He might have lost control of himself and thrown the stone devil on her."

"There seems to be two reasons against that—or three. The first is that, so far as we can tell, he had no reason to think that her death would benefit him. While she lived there was hope. Second, he was liable to be seen in the gardents at any moment. Then, of course, the man may be a schemer, but I doubt his being capable of the sudden fury you suggest. If he came openly, he would have gone in at the proper entrance and been seen by Ben Acres. So for the present I am inclined to believe his story that he did not go in at all."

"Why don't you show me as clearly who did and not who didn't do it," growled Richmond.

Jimmie laughed as they started to the house for another look for the will. Morgan, the lawyer, was at Merrow Craig when they arrived and desribed the will as a lengthy document of stout paper, tied with green silk.

Evelyn said that her aunt was very methodical and usually dealt with business matters at her desk and that it was Janet's job to remove waste paper and rubbish.

The maid, summoned to the young ladies' dressing room, where the little group was assembled, was positive she had never removed any paper of the sort described.

"But I seed the will, all right," she added suddenly.

"When did you see it? Where?" asked Richmond.

"She was reading it. It was like the gentleman says—large sheets of paper, written over, and tied with green ribbon." Janet could not be sure, but this was on either the Monday or the Tuesday before her mistress died

At the insistence of the lawyer, who was sure Miss Querdling had not destroyed it, every corner of the house was ransacked, but nothing was found. The desk at which Miss Querdling had done most of her business yielded nothing, except an empty secret drawer, behind which there was an unsuspected panel This slid back and revealed a faded photograph of fifty years before—a man with side-whiskers whom Marjorie and Evelyn guessed to be their father—a valentine and some dust that once had been rose leaves. But there was no will.

Richmond received the girls' promise that the search would be resumed next day. He and Jimmie drove over to Roscoe's home. Roscoe was still on duty, but Mrs. Roscoe asked them in

The superintendent was glad to accept the beer served by Mrs. Roscoe "It's the most baffling, contradictory affair that ever came my way," he exclaimed.

"It is difficult," said Jimmie, "an d calls for some clear thinking. Let's cut out the things that will not really assist, the impersonal ones first. The letters probably won't help. Duckworth suggested they were written by two people. Probably so, the first by some disgruntled servant, meaning no harm. Then some one took up the idea, out of devilry, or to keep alive the impression of the first enemy and to divert suspicion from later events.

"Green thought the car he and Collett saw resembled Stirling's and Dr. Netherton saw Stirling driving in that direction."

"I confirmed Stirling's visit to his friend at Midgley Moor," said Richmond. "Yet it would not have been impossible for him to have spent 10 or 15 minutes at Merrow Craig. No one else admits parking on the course at that time."

Jimmie resumed. "Then the will. I suggest you inquire at the bank. I don't think it's there, for I don't believe she would have signed a will likely to be contested."

"Then what has become of it?" questioned Richmond

"Mislaid: destroyed by the lady or stolen by some one else."

"Who would steal an unsigned will?"

"Those who did not wish it signed; those who thought it signed; or those who, in ignorance of the law, might think it had some value even when unsigned."

"Such people being——?"

"That brings us to the next point. Who benefit by Annabelle Querdling's death? Three persons principally. Her two nieces and her nephew. Vincent's story of the building estate might have been seized on as an excuse to account for his calling here. If he came intent on crime he would have come, and gone, in secret. To come openly and then turn back seems foolish. Yet it is its weakness that makes it convincing."

"Well—where does that lead us?"

"Are you prepared to accept the guilt of either Evelyn or Marjorie—jointly or separately—as principals or accessories?"

To Be Continued.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

THIS is Saturday, and is the nicest day in the week. Men get paid on Saturday, and there isn't any school on Saturday, and today it was sunshiny even if a cold wind did blow off the lake. I had my valentines stuck onto my room walls with tacks and it made my room look right good. I was so happy that I went downstairs singing, and everyone hollered at me to shut up, so I did and got the pail and went out in the yard and Jubilee was running around like he knew it was Saturday and was as happy as I was, but he wasn't. He couldn't be. He hadn't got any valentines, and he was only a dog and didn't have anything to be happy with.

When I got out to the barn the bunch was there all but Nibs and he was over milking Scanlun's cow, but Red was there and he said Nibs thought I was the one that sent them the valentine they fit about, and I asted him what he thought about it, and he said, "I'm not thinking anything about it. My mouth's knocked crooked already; but it was a dirty trick." I said if Nibs wanted his mouth knocked crooked all he had to do was to say so. Then I seen the Lost Bag of Tripe grinning like he had swallowed a feather and was being tickled, and I knew who had sent it, but I didn't say anything. I am no tattletail hanging on the cow's tail.

When I went in to breakfast I was still happy, but when I went in the dining room it was like going into an ice house. When I got sot down my father handed me a folded paper and asted me what I thought of that, and I opened it up and it was a valentine with a picture of a skinny lady with a tongue about a mile long, and it was so funny I began to laugh, and my father said to me did I ever see it before, and I told him I hadn't so then he turned to my ant and said he had told her so. Someone had sent it to her, and she blamed me for it, but she had to believe it when I said I never. For I don't lie, and she knows it. But if I had had it I would of sent it to her, but I'm glad I didn't, for I would of got licked.

When the bunch came we all wanted to go to the stink factory, but the girls didn't want to go there so we went down to the dam and made a fire on it out of old railroad ties and then we played crack the whip on the pond, and it was rubber ice and we had to keep running to keep from busting through. Potty Pierce was the cracker and when we snapped the line he rolled over and over, and then before he could get up the ice busted, but all the rest of us got to the dam all right. That's what he gets for being so fat. He was mad and wet too, but it was good we had made a fire.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Realizing That the "Bomb" May Yet Be Dangerous, Harry Prepares for His Lone Investigation of It.

AT DICKY'S question as to what my father wished done about the "dud out there," Harry Underwood leaned forward truculently.

"Look here, my bucko lad," he said, "Who gave you permission to horn in when your superiors have told you to go back and sit down. Us" Where do you get that word?"

"Oh! it's an easy two-letter word, I don't need Madge's vocabulary to find it," Dicky grinned companionably at me, and I smiled back at him, although the gibe was one hoary with age which I never have relished. "I can spell it and pronounce it, too, and I've even used it in cross-word puzzles. And don't make any mistake about it, sweetheart. That word goes."

Mr Underwood turned and held up his hand as a pupil might in school.

"Teacher' teacher!" he piped, looking at my father. "Won't you lock Dicky in the closet" He's bothering me so I can't get by lessons'

He turned back to his friend with steely eyes above his wide grin that betrayed the determination which he was hiding behind his nonsense.

"Hain't you got glory enuff for one night'" he demanded "With these old eyes didn't I see you pick up that deadly miss-ile—long 'I' please, everybody—and hurl it into the middle of next week?"

"About as deadly as a fire-cracker," Dicky grumbled.

"But you nor nobody else knew that," his friend countered. "And make no mistake. That counts as your one good deed for the morning, my ambitious Boy Scout. Me, I crave to be heroic myself. And I'm going to look after this little job myself, if I have to spank you and truss you up like a nice roasting chicken"

Eliminating Dicky

"Ye- ah?" Dicky burlesqued "You and how many more?"

"That remains to be seen," his friends returned, and said no more un'il we had finished our breakfast and were returning to the veranda. But I had seen, what Dicky had not, the mocking, tender, and overwhelmingly mischievous look in his big black eyes, and I watched him narrowly as we made our way back into the hall, where the men stepped back to let Lillian and me precede them

To my surprise the stout door, always heavily bolted, of a coat closet stood open, but I repressed at once the impulse to close it and to exclaim at its opening. I remembered that just as we were sitting down to the table in the kitchen alcove, Mr. Underwood had made an excuse to slip back to the hall to be sure the screen door was locked. The next instant I heard the sound of an angry sputtering exclamation, and turned in time to see the big man, a noted football tackle in his time, thrusting his slighter friend into the depths of the closet, closing the door upon him, and thrusting the heavy bolts into their sockets At that, I think, Dicky's wrath and his agility would have enabled him to keep the door from closing, had not my father, with a strength beyond his years flung himself also against the door, and given Mr. Underwood just the foot-poundage necessary to secure it. When he had bolted it, he turned the key in the lock, took it out and pocketed it Then he spoke through the keyhole.

Lillian's Offer

"Sorry, old man, but I couldn't do anything else," he said to his raging, sputtering friend within. "You took the brunt of things a little while ago It's my turn"

"Madge!" Dicky's voice was hoarse with anger, all the more intense because his code forbade useless kicking and banging at the door. "Let me out of here!"

"Oh! I will, Dicky," I said hypocritically, "just as soon as I can get the key away from Harry. He has it in his pocket"

His reply probably sent the recording angel into spasms, and when he followed the objurgation with a demand to "find another key," I answered hastily, "Yes, yes, Dicky," knowing that before I could obey him, even if I wished to do so, all necessity for any action on his part would be over. Then I fled to the veranda where I found Harry Underwood speaking respectfully but insistently to my father.

"It's no use, Chief" he said. "I am not going to let you go with me. I'll obey any other command you give me, but there's a possibility that thing isn't spent yet, and if so, there's no use of two of us getting it. I'd hate to have to manhandle an older man, but by the——"

"You won't have to, boy," my father said suddenly. "Go—you've earned the right."

"Thanks!" He turned, and as he passed Lillian, his hand rested for a second on her shoulder. Then he was out of the door, and, stooping, took from underneath a flowing water faucet a large bucket filled with water, and we realized that he had prepared this as he had the closet door in the incredibly brief time of his absence from the table.

To all appearances Lillian had made no sign whatever at the casual caress her husband had given her, but as he took up the bucket of water, and started across the lawn, she opened the door and walked steadily through it, down the steps and to his side.

"You wont' manhandle me, dearest," I heard her say confidently, "I'm going with you"
